Synopsis

Propelling the reader back and forth between the 1940s, 1960s and 1980s, The Silent Listener is an unforgettable literary suspense novel set in the dark, gothic heart of rural Australia.

In the cold, wet summer of 1960, 11-year-old Joy Henderson lives in constant fear of her father. She tries to make him happy but, as he keeps reminding her, she is nothing but a filthy sinner destined for Hell . . . Yet, decades later, she returns to the family's farm to nurse him on his death bed. To her surprise, her 'perfect' sister Ruth is also there, whispering dark words, urging revenge.

Then the day after their father finally confesses to a despicable crime, Joy finds him dead - with a belt pulled tight around his neck . . .

For Senior Constable Alex Shepherd, investigating George's murder revives memories of an unsolved case still haunting him since that strange summer of 1960: the disappearance of nine-year-old Wendy Boscombe. As seemingly impossible facts surface about the Hendersons - from the past and the present - Shepherd suspects that Joy is pulling him into an intricate web of lies and that Wendy's disappearance is the key to the bizarre truth.

Synopsis

Was I always trans, part boy beneath my skin, or was it that I landed in a place where 'girl' was a container so small it could break your bones?

I learn that a ready smile and sympathetic ear are the only props required to impersonate a woman. The performance becomes so familiar I almost forget that it's staged.

It's strange how easy it is to be erased by grammar; how a single pronoun can stomp my green shoots back into the dirt.

What happens when, aged 30, you understand you're transgender?

This was the question that confronted Yves Rees, a historian whose life was upended by gender transition in 2018. Then known as a woman called Anne, Yves was forced to grapple with the sudden knowledge that they were not, in fact, female at all.

But when you've lived a lie for so long, how do you discover who you really are? And how do you re-learn to live in the world as a different gender?

All About Yves tells their moving journey of re-becoming, at the same time laying bare the messiness of bodies, gender and identity. It shares the challenges and joys of being transgender, and reveals how trans experiences like Yves' can teach all of us about what it means to be man or woman.

Author

Dr Yves Rees is a writer and historian living on unceded Wurundjeri land. At present, Yves is a David Myers Research Fellow in History at La Trobe University and co-host of the history podcast 'Archive Fever.' Yves has published widely across Australian gender, transnational and economic history, and also writes on transgender identity and politics. Yves is a regular contributor to ABC radio and The Conversation, and their work has appeared in 'Overland,' 'Guardian Australia,' 'Inside Story' and 'Archer.'

Praise

"You will never think about gender — yours or anyone else's — the same way again."

Synopsis

A heartfelt essay collection from Clementine Ford best-selling author of Fight Like a Girl and Boys Will Be Boys

Humans can't help falling in love: deeply, strangely and with curiosity. Clementine Ford is fascinated by love and the multiple ways it makes its home in our hearts. We continue to surrender ourselves to love, knowing as we do that it is a constantly changing, twisting beast that sometimes threatens to destroy us. Love is an act of courage that challenges and strengthens us.

Ford explores the conversations we have with love every day. With her trademark humour, incisive social commentary, and use of memoir, she examines how love has appeared in her life and the ways it has changed her for better and/or worse.

From the love of parents and children, lovers, film, songs, and pop culture, Ford pays homage to the bravery of love and our refusal to stop believing in it.

Author

Clementine Ford is a Melbourne-based writer, speaker and feminist thinker. She is a columnist for Fairfax's Daily Life and is a regular contributor to the Age and Sydney Morning Herald. Through her twice-weekly columns for Daily Life, Clementine explores issues of gender inequality and pop culture. Fight Like a Girl is her first book.

Her ability to use humour and distilled fury to lay bare ongoing issues affecting women has earned her a huge and loyal readership. Clementine's work has radically challenged the issues of men's violence against women, rape culture and gender warfare in Australia, while her comedic take on casual sexism and entertainment has earned her a reputation as an accomplished satirist.

Synopsis - Fight Like a Girl

Online sensation, fearless feminist heroine and scourge of trolls and misogynists everywhere, Clementine Ford is a beacon of hope and inspiration to thousands of Australian women and girls. Her incendiary debut Fight Like a Girl is an essential manifesto for feminists new, old and soon-to-be, and exposes just how unequal the world continues to be for women. Crucially, it is a call to arms for all women to rediscover the fury that has been suppressed by a society that still considers feminism a threat.

Fight Like a Girl will make you laugh, cry and scream. But above all it will make you demand and fight for a world in which women have real equality and not merely the illusion of it.

Synopsis - Boys will be boys

*"Everyone's afraid that their daughters might be hurt. No one seems to be scared that their sons might be the ones to do it ... This book ... is the culmination of many years of writing about power, abuse, privilege, male entitlement and rape culture. After all that, here's what I've learned: we should be f*cking terrified."* Clementine Ford.

Ford demolishes the age-old assumption that superiority and aggression are natural realms for boys, and demonstrates how toxic masculinity creates a disturbingly limited and potentially dangerous idea of what it is to be a man. Crucially, Boys Will Be Boys reveals how the patriarchy we live in is as harmful to boys and men as it is to women and girls, and asks what we have to do to reverse that damage.

Synopsis

Violence and the representation of women in the media.

On average, at least one woman is murdered by a current or former partner every week in Australia. Far too many Australian women have experienced physical or sexual violence. Only rarely do these women capture the attention of the media and the public. What can we do to stem the tide of violence and tragedy?

Finally, we are starting to talk about this epidemic of gendered violence, but too often we are doing so in a way that can be clumsy and harmful. Victim blaming, passive voice and over-identification with abusers continue to be hallmarks of reporting on this issue. And, with newsrooms drastically cutting staff and resources, and new business models driven by rapid churn and the 24 hour news cycle journalists and editors often don't have the time or resources bring new ways of thinking into their newsrooms.

Fixed It demonstrates the myths that we're unconsciously sold about violence against women, and undercuts them in a clear and compelling way. This is a bold, powerful look at the stories we are told – and the stories we tell ourselves – about gender and power, and a call to action for all of us to think harder and do better.

Author

Jane Gilmore was the founding editor of The King's Tribune. She is now a freelance journalist and a regular columnist for The Age and Sydney Morning Herald. Jane is currently completing a Master of Journalism at the University of Melbourne and has a particular interest in feminism, media and data journalism.

Synopsis

Inspired by a true event – A Spy in the House of Love is a revenge novel like no other.

Miriam Duffy, a respectable 63-year-old widow and successful North Shore real estate agent realises exactly what she must do. She sets about researching how to buy a gun. As a successful businesswoman, she knows how to turn an idea into action and applies the same methodical, disciplined approach to this project as she does to her profession. She gets a gun license (she's very law abiding usually), joins a gun club. And, once she feels she knows exactly how to do what she intends to do, she waits until the next court appointment where husband and wife are battling over custody because she then knows exactly where her son in law will be and at what time. She waits outside the family court and when he approaches, she gets up, unrecognisable in a hoodie and jeans (and no one notices old ladies anyway), walks straight up to her daughter's estranged husband and shoots him fatally in the heart at point blank range – she wants to be certain, after all, and she does not want anyone else to be injured. She makes no attempt to escape, just lays the gun down by her victim and waits to be arrested.

In the face of escalating family violence, this novel explores outlets for our collective rage and sense of hopelessness, and although there are other writers who are tackling the scourge of domestic violence in various ways, Jane Caro has an advantage with her huge existing platform, her popularity as a public speaker, her ability to distill and articulate complex problems clearly, and her advocacy for women's rights. And with this novel, she does it from a very personal point of view.

Author

Bestselling Irish-Australian author Ellie O'Neill's debut, Reluctantly Charmed was a Top 5 bestseller, and was snapped up by Touchstone (S&S) in the US. She worked in a London advertising agency with some of the industry's greatest minds, however, after deciding to write her first book, she left the dizzy lights of London, and moved back to Dublin with her parents. While in Dublin, she met a lovely Irish man, who works with horses. The only catch was he was based in Australia. But, never one to let a good thing slip through her fingers, she married him and moved to a rural horsey-property in Australia. The Matchmakers is her highly anticipated fourth novel.

Previous titles

Synopsis

The Matchmakers is a family dramedy centring around a family of strong female characters who are interesting and three dimensional: Evie a grandmother with 'second sight' who can read auras and see the 'spark' between potential love matches. Her granddaughter Rosie - big-hearted, but unlucky-in-love. Rosie's sister Molly - married with two boys, sleep deprived, exhausted, and is wondering what the hell has happened to her life. Rosie and Molly's mother, Yvonne, is going through a crisis of her own—she is deeply ashamed and unwilling to face the financial ruin she is in which will have repercussions on her livelihood, family business and family history. When particular events spiral out of control, Evie, Yvonne, Rosie and Molly find strengths and reserves within themselves they didn't know they had, which culminates in a reinvention of sorts for all of them.

Praise

"Ellie O'Neill has an absolutely natural flair for dialogue and humour. When she puts characters in situations that are interactive and populated, the writing sings on the page. She has created memorable characters in the sisters Rosie and Molly and how they relate to one another- their bond, their shared history, their individual struggles and the unspoken understanding that occurs between siblings"
